cherries this glorious day."

She was on her feet and in a flash had serambled up the bank and had taken refuge behind a clump of wild plum bushes. The stranger saw a very fat girl coming down the path. She waddled along quite breathigssly. Her large, round face was an ochre monotone in hue. Her tow-colored hair was piled up under one of the lace draped baby hats, suitable only to faces the daintiest, the most piquant, and it gave to her countenance the ludicrous suggestiveness of a frilled cheese. Uncomfertably tight appeared the gown of foulard slik that constrained her ample charms. She peered from side to side as she advanced.

"I must go home, I suppose. There's the new man's room to put in order. My step-mother has no need to take boarders. Papa left her well off. But she thinks it's the only way to get Harriet married."

The traveler sprang up and lifted his suit case.

"She'd have a better chance of that," he averred positively, "If she'd do something clee first."

went to Fort Douglas yesterday afternoon where Mrs. Morrow entertained at ten in honor of Mrs. Baldwin and Mrs. Drum. Most of the women of the garrison were present and the afternoon proved to be a most delightful one. Mrs. Morrow is an ideal hostess and made all of her guests graciously welcome. In the Capt. and Mrs. Morrow entertained a number of their intimate friends at a merry buffet supper, the officers coming home just in time to enjoy the repast, although not early enough to place ome of their many ducks on the brotler Today Mrs. Lockwood will be the hostess at an afternoon eard party while the officers will be taken up with the duties be the largest event of the memorable visit of Gen. Baldwin. The Fort Douglas people, however, and many of their friends, are eagerly anticipating the ball masque and cotillion to be given by the Woodwards, Jamersons and Sturgises on the evening of January 2 in the post ball.

A delightful host is Governor Weils and when one accepts his hospitality one is assured of a good time. Yesterday, in honor of Gen. Baldwin, he made up a party for a trip to the duck grounds of the New State Duck club. The party drove out in large ambulances and although it snowed and blew, the sport was fine and each bagged a fine lot of ducks. Gen. Baldwin is a aplendid shot and it was a pleasure to his friends to see him. the New State Duck club.

Mr. Hager will arrive Sunday morning and that evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Walker a few of the unmarried friends of the prospective bride and groom will be entertained at an informal ten at which time the health of the two may be given and the evening passed in the usual informal manner customary at such pleasant gatherings.

The large event of today will be the luncheon by Mrs. John E. Dooly.

Miss Margaret Walker had an at home last Friday evening and is planning another for the Friday before Christmas. A number of her youthful friends drop in for those merry evenings and the programme is one that will appeal most strongly to the children.

What with the military, school and pri-ate dances on the tapis society will have right merry Yule tide.
